

Genesis 30:38 And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink.

A close-up photograph of two vibrant orange butterflies with black markings on their wings, resting on a light-colored, textured rock. The background is softly blurred, showing green foliage and a dark, circular shadow on the rock.